

glyph

The word glyph is used differently in different contexts. In the context of modern computer operating systems, it is often defined as a shape in a font that is used to represent a character code on screen or paper. The most common example of a glyph is a letter, but the symbols and shapes in a font like ITC Zapf Dingbats are also glyphs.

From:

<https://type.wiki/> - type|wiki

Permanent link:

https://type.wiki/en/sources/adobe\_glossary/glyphe.md

Last update: 16/03/2025 15:22

