

display font

A font that has been designed to look good at large point sizes, often for use in headlines. Typically such a font is not as readable at smaller sizes for large amounts of text. If a serif font with optical sizes, it will likely have lighter weight main stems and much lighter weight serifs and crossbars than a text-size version of the same typeface.

From:

<https://type.wiki/> - type|wiki

Permanent link:

https://type.wiki/en/sources/adobe\_glossary/police-de-tirage.md

Last update: 16/03/2025 15:22

